MAN-WOMAN SAYS MAN OUT IN THE WORLD IS A HUNTER OF WOMEN

Cora Anderson, the Girl Who Lived As a Man for Thirteen Years, Says Men Do Not Seek the Domestic Girl—"Men Pick Girls Who Are Good Looking."

(Editor's Note—Cora Anderson, the man-woman of Milwaukee, who for thirteen years dressed as a man, worked as a man, acted as a man and to whom two other women passed as his wife, has written her impressions of the world and of its male population for The Day Book. She tells how she, a woman disguised as a man, taken by everybody for a man and treated as a man, saw masculinity. Men acted in her presence as they would not act in the presence of women, and she tells on them something awful in these confessions she has written for The Day Book. But she doesn't fail to tell about women out in the world and to advise them from the store of her vast knowledge of men and manners.)

BY CORA ANDERSON.

(The Woman Who Posed As a Man For Thirteen Years.)

This world is made by man—for man alone.

I, who have lived as a man among men, realize it.
